

The Peperomia Genus

If Peperomias filled out a plant personal ad, they'd describe themselves as pretty low-maintenance and relatively easy to care for. They are slightly succulent-like, meaning they prefer their soil to dry out between waterings so require less frequent dousing (every 10ish days, depending on your environment of course). And they can handle MEDIUM light situations. What a perfect starter plant.

☀️ Light: Medium

💧 Water: Moderate (let soil dry out between waterings). Overwatering is the enemy!

🌱 Soil: General houseplant soil

🐱🐶 Pet Safe? YES!!
